Reapportionment Bill To Senate: How?

REVIEW BOARD
SALARIES CUT
BY SUPERVISORS

Reduction Of $1 a Day
Voted At Session
Thursday P. M.

The regular June meeting of the Board of Supervisors was recessed yesterday afternoon after a four-day session, to reconvene July 14, at which time the selection of grand and petit jurors will be made. This recess was taken to await the outcome of a bill pending before the legislature at the present time which is expected to become a law by July 1, permitting women to serve on juries.

The last matter of business outside the general routine, was the reduction of salaries of members of the Board of Review which is to convene next week. The salary of the three board members, which for several years has been $5 per day, was reduced to $4. The salary of the clerk of the board which heretofore has been $5 a day was reduced to $3.50. Chairman Ortgiesen, who is a member of the board asked for a roll call vote on the recommendation of the fees and salaries committee and the board voted 20 to 5 for the adoption of the reduction measure.

The Board of Review is composed of Chairman Ortgiesen of South Dixon, of the Board of Supervisors as chairman, John P. Harvey, mayor of Amboy and Amos H. Bosworth of this city. The clerk is to be named when the Board of Review convenes next week.

Capone Indicted
On Liquor Charge

Chicago, June 12—(UP)—The federal grand jury indicted Alphonse "Scarface" Capone again today. He headed a list of 68 persons named in true bills charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Last week Capone was indicted on charge of evading income tax payments.

Although he has a reputation as the country's biggest liquor scyler this is only the second time the federal government has accused him of bootlegging. The previous indictment was quashed.

Today's indictment was prepared by Oliver Pagan, indictment expert of the United States Attorney General's office, and was returned before Circuit Judge John P. Barnes. It cites 19 overt acts between 1921 and 1931 in and around Chicago.

Democrats Point Out Errors Which May Defeat The Measure

(BULLETIN)
Springfield, Ill., June 12—(AP)—Lacking one vote of having a constitutional majority, the new women jury service bills were defeated today in the lower House of the General Assembly.

Seventy-six votes were cast for the bill and forty-six against it. A companion measure was tabled.

Springfield, Ill., June 12—(AP)—The House of the Assembly will be beaten in their fight against congressional reapportionment, today cited errors in the bill drafted by Republicans, which may mean defeat for the measure.

Minority Leader Michael Igoe today pointed out that half of the village of Calumet in Cook county is in two separate and distinct districts, the Third and the Fifth. He refused, however, to say what his action on the bill will be when it is returned to the House for concurrence in the amendment straightening out the error.

Although the Senate did not meet today, the calendar of the Upper House showed the reapportionment bill, which was passed by the House only yesterday afternoon, on the order of second reading.

Just how the bill got from the House and was read a first time in the Senate is unknown. The Record, however, shows it is there and the Supreme Court has held that the Record can not be questioned.

James Paddock, Secretary of the Senate, said today that the bill was reported from the House in the regular way and that Lt. Gov. Fred Sterling ordered it read a first time and placed on second reading without reference.

Pope Sends Reply
To Italian Gov't.

Vatican City, June 12—(AP)—Pope Pius XI today handed his reply to the Italian government's recent note in the church-state controversy to Papal Nuncio Borgognini-Duca and instructed him to take it to Foreign Minister Dino Grandi.

Although the details were not made public, the message is believed to adopt a conciliatory tone toward the government and is said to be considerably milder than previous Vatican notes. A high Vatican official said "within a week now everything will be settled."

Before handing over the note, the Pontiff conferred with his Papal Nuncio for an hour and a half and they discussed every angle of the controversy. He was reported to have adopted in his latest message the tone of a father grieving at the wardwardness of beloved sons, instead of that of an independent sovereign addressing a foreign power. Vatican circles were more optimistic of a quick settlement than at any time since the beginning of the dispute.

One Dead In Storm
Over The Southwest

Kansas City, June 12—(AP)—The southwest today was facing the prospect of showers and cloudy weather following rainstorms and tornadoes, the latter of which took one life in Oklahoma and caused injuries to four persons in Texas.

Mamie Landrum, 16, was killed, and her mother, Mrs. Donnie McGowan, was injured when a tornado struck their home in Fort Gibson, Okla., last night. Several houses were unroofed and windows in the postoffice and other buildings were broken.

Near Brady, Tex., a small tornado demolished the farm home of Jack Whitehead, injuring Mrs. Whitehead and her three young children, none dangerously.

A heavy rainfall was general over Kansas.

The forecast for the southwest territory was "rain on hand or in prospect" for today.

University Student
Kills Self At Home

Chicago, June 12—(AP)—Clarence Hawkins, 20, sophomore of the University of Illinois, committed suicide by shooting himself in the family home yesterday. His parents had brought him home from Champaign Wednesday night. They said they believed he was a victim of hysteria resulting from the "final grind" to pass his examinations.

AUTOGIRO FALLS
BUT OCCUPANTS
ESCAPE INJURY

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam Handled the Plane Skillfully

Abile, Tex., June 12—(AP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam escaped injury today when her autogiro crashed from an altitude of about thirty feet as she was taking off from the airport here to resume her journey eastward from California. The plane was damaged considerably.

The autogiro failed to attain sufficient momentum on the take-off and crashed amid parked automobiles in a fenced-off space near the hangar of the Abilene airport.

Although several automobiles were damaged, it was reported that no one in the crowd was injured. Miss Earhart climbed out of the plane and walked a short distance away.

The flier's mechanic, Eddie De Vaught, also was unhurt.

Mrs. Putnam had taken off with a slow start and was heading southward, flying over the heads of the spectators, when the undercarriage of the ship struck a field landing lamp near the automobile parking enclosure. When it became evident the autogiro could not clear the automobiles, the woman pilot expertly set the ship down in a clear without damaging them seriously.

Mrs. Putnam, the first woman to cross the Atlantic ocean in an airplane, declared she had control of the "flying windmill" at all times. "I underestimated the distance," she said. "Possibly a whirlwind caught the tail of the autogiro."

The flier said she would remain here possibly several days, awaiting new parts for the ship.

NEW SHIP ENROUTE.

Philadelphia, June 12—Pilot J. Paul Lukens took off from the Pitsburgh aircraft factory at Willow Grove, Pa., today with a new autogiro for Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, whose "wind mill" plane was damaged in a takeoff at the Abilene, Texas, airport.

The new autogiro was hurried south on order that Mrs. Earhart might proceed with her tour and keep an engagement in Oklahoma City Sunday. Pilot Lukens took along repair parts and plans to fly her plane back to the factory here.

Mass Meeting Last Eve
At City Hall Drew
Large Crowd

W. F. Costello of Ottawa, Ill., addressed a large gathering of farmers and land owners of Dixon and vicinity last evening at a public meeting held at the city hall, talking on the subject, "How the Farmers Loan May be Lightened." The speaker advocated three per cent money as a preventative from foreclosure sales as a renewal of confidence and hope and to encourage farmers to remain on the farms instead of going to the cities to compete in other mechanical and industrial pursuits, thus tending to stabilize labor.

He cited the mortgaged indebtedness in other counties in Illinois where the average interest rate is six per cent and the savings that would result from the three per cent rate. The new plan, it was pointed out, is economically sound and not to be considered class legislation to stabilize agriculture. The program is being forwarded in several other counties throughout the state, it was stated.

Reapportionment
Passed By House

Springfield, Ill., June 12—(AP)—The House late last night passed a Republican reapportionment bill 79 to 66.

All Democratic members voted against the bill excepting Rep. Borders of East St. Louis, who voted "present."

Four Republicans, Acker of Savannah, Benso of Ottawa, McCaskin of Rock Island and Soderstrom of Streator, likewise voted negatively.

Chicago, June 12—(AP)—Belere Smith, 19-year-old girl reported kidnaped from Waukegan yesterday, was located today in De Forest, Jayne's Riding Academy near Diamond Lake in Lake county.

Chief of Police Clayton Tiffany of Mundelein and Lake County deputy sheriffs who rescued the girl said she had not been harmed. They arrested one man at the stables and sent to Willow Springs in Cook county to find three others.

ANTI-CHAIN BILL PASSES HOUSE BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Big Licenses Would Be Required For Owners
Of Chain Systems

Springfield, Ill., June 12—(AP)—After Anthony Pintozi, Democrat, Chicago real estate broker, made a lengthy speech to an attentive audience, the House of Representatives today by a vote of 135 to 0 passed his bill to regulate chain stores in Illinois.

Although the vote was made unanimous as a compliment to Pintozi, who was congratulated and presented a bouquet of flowers, F. W. Lewis, Democrat of Robinson, voted "present" and then objected to the bill on the ground it would force gasoline stations all over the state out of business.

Pintozi charged that the chain store business as a monopoly was "doing a big part in creating the present economic depression." His bill would regulate chain stores by requiring that any person owning three stores procure a $25 license, and that persons owning more than three pay $1,000 each as license for the additional ones.

It would apply to stores selling "food products, meats, groceries, drugs, tobacco, wearing apparel, furniture, hardware or manufactured products," and would take effect October 1, 1931. Violations of the act would be punishable by a fine of $1,000 to $5,000.

Co. Judges' Salaries
This bill was Pintozi's first and his speech drew a round of compliments, several of which styled him "The Little Giant," and "The Little Giant from Chicago."

By a vote of 79 to 47 the House of Representatives today passed a bill to provide for $658,000 for payment of county judges by the states instead of the counties. Under terms of the bill $628,000 would be paid downstate judges from the State Treasury, and $30,000 to judges in Cook county, in the next two years.

Success of this appropriation measure hinges on two other bills transferring payment of the judges from county treasurers to the state. All three bills were offered by William E. Gilmore, Democrat, Champaign. Cook county members composed the opposition, objecting that the bill would add more of downstate's tax burden to Cook county.

The House also passed a bill appropriating a million dollars for improvement at various charitable and penal institutions.

Held For Murder Of His Former Fiancee

San Diego, Cal., June 12—(AP)—Moss E. Garrison, 37, was held today without bail for formal trial for the murder of his 22-year-old former fiancee, Hazel Bradshaw.

The girl's body, torn by 17 knife wounds, was found in an artificial Indian village in Balboa Park, May 3. He stoutly maintained he had left the girl at her home at midnight May 2 and his attorney sought to show Miss Bradshaw later met another who killed her in an automobile and left her body in the Indian village.

The state charges Garrison killed Miss Bradshaw in a fit of jealousy as they walked through the park.

Negro Senator To Prosecute Clerk

Springfield, Ill., June 12—(UP)—Claiming that he had been insulted and that the state civil rights law had been violated, State Senator A. H. Roberts, Republican, Chicago, a Negro, planned today to press charges against Harold Daley, soda clerk, whose arrest Roberts caused last night.

The Senator claims he purchased some cigars and a soft drink in the shop employing Daley and that the latter poured the drink in a paper container and told him to go outside the shop to drink it.

When Roberts refused his money was refunded and Daley's arrest followed. The case will be heard in police court next Tuesday.

DISORDERS MARK
MINERS' STRIKE
IN OHIO FIELD
2,000 Strikers Marched
On County Jail
At St. Clairsville

St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 12—(AP)—Outward calm prevailed in Belmont county today despite a march on the county jail last night by 2,000 miners and their sympathizers following the arrest of seven persons for creating disorders and the tearing of twelve others by deputy sheriffs.

The disorders at the jail, the first serious outbreak in the week-old strike, followed the arrest of the seven leaders of a march on the New Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Company, where 320 men continued at work despite the strike.

Quiet prevailed at the mine this morning although 125 pickets were on duty and had persuaded about 10 percent of the workers to quit.

Deputy sheriffs kept the crowd about the mine moving, and little trouble was expected. The deputies were augmented by several machine guns placed in position by mine officials after reports were circulated that another attempt to force miners to quit would be made this afternoon.

With 40 deputies at the New Lafferty mine, Sheriff Duff held 20 others sworn in early today, in readiness at the county jail for any fresh outbreak of trouble. The new deputies were recruited from local members of the American Legion.

Leo Thompson, Pittsburgh, alleged leader of the disturbance last night, was still in jail today and Prosecutor Paul Waddell said he would be charged with inciting a riot. He will be arraigned late today, and the Prosecutor said he would ask that his bond be set at $25,000.

He was suffering from injuries resulting from a fall from his room on the fifth floor of a loop hotel to a court three stories below.

Ray Reilly, night manager of the hotel, said he heard the impact of Ramsey's body on the roof and went to the spot.

"How did I get here?" he said Ramsey moaned. "Get me out of here."

"Ten Herbs is excellent to relieve indigestion," said Mr. Waldo J. Breen, 129 S. Lincoln Highway, DeKalb. "I had severe pains in my back and shoulder blades. My sleep was restless and I felt fagged in the morning. There was an aching over my eyes and in the back of my head. It is possible that my liver was torpid as I had dizzy, faint spells and felt drowsy. I had no appetite and after eating I had distressing gas pains. I was also constipated. "I tried Ten Herbs and the results were gratifying. The pains and stiffness in my back and the aching around my shoulder blades have been relieved. I sleep well at night and feel ambitious in the morning. I don't feel dizzy or faint and I am not constipated. The aching in my head has been relieved. My appetite has improved and I am free from gas pains. I will be sure to speak up for Ten Herbs, which has helped me more than I can put in words."

WHEN CORN'S T-TOSSLIN' OUT

(By George H. Free)
Pears to me that heaven draws near
Long about this time of year;
Natures strings her treasures 'round
On the bushes, trees and ground.
Some like Christmas, others May—
Folks is curious that a-way—
But the best time, 'thout a doubt,
'S right when corn's a-tosslin' out.

'Bout the middle of July,
Crops all tended and laid by,
Everwhere the mower's song,
Oats a-turbin' good an' strong;
New pertaters and snap beans,
Apple sass and mustard greens—
Eat until I bust, about,
Right when corn's a-tosslin' out.

Lord, how odd some people be!
Light out for the lakes or sea;
Can's stand summer, hain't it queer?
Git hay fever every year.
But fer me of Iowa
'S good enough place fer to stay;
Feel so good I dang near shout,
Right when corn's a-tosslin' out.

Two Big Fortunes
Joined by Union

London, June 12—(UP)—Two of America's greatest fortunes were united today when Anthony J. Bixel Biddle of Philadelphia was married to Mrs. Margaret Schultz, only daughter of William Boyce Thompson, copper magnate.

The ceremony was conducted quietly at the Princes Regester office shortly after 11 a. m.

Biddle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, one of the most socially prominent families in America. His first wife was Miss Mary L. Duke, heiress of the Duke tobacco fortune. They were divorced last March.

Mrs. Schultz is one of the wealthiest women in the United States. She shared equally with her mother, the former Gertrude Hickman of Helena, Mont., in the $100,000,000 estate of Colonel Thompson.

Biddle notified the Register office only yesterday that they intended to marry. They said then that honeymoon plans were indefinite.

St. Ann's Guild Sponsors Industrial Exhibit

St. Ann's Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church gave a very successful Industrial Exhibit of quilts, made by the Guild, also showing many very old ones, loaned by the different friends of the Guild members. There were also exhibited braided and hooked rugs, artistic in design and perfect in workmanship; old pictures and many interesting articles of olden days.

Flowers were in abundance making the Guild rooms most attractive with beauty and fragrance. Mesdames D. G. Harvey and J. G. Ralston arranged the tea table, the center being graced with a large silver vase filled with peonies, with silver candlesticks on either side, the green silk table spread gleaming under the final lovely lace cover, making a beautiful picture.

Members of the Guild were the hostesses for the afternoon.

Chanticleer Capes New Evening Fashion

Paris—(AP)—Chanticleer capes are a fashionable new cocoon for the night-time butterflies of the Champs Elysees. The Capes are made of white coque feathers so closely padded on white satin that they made a solid feathery mass. They tie with a white velvet bow at the throat and are worn hanging loose to the waist.

TEACHERS AND PUPILS TO PRACTICE—

The teachers and pupils of the Primary department of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school will meet for practice for the Children's Day program Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the church.

Fifth National Atwater-Kent Radio Audition For 1931

The Fifth National Radio Audition sponsored by the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia will be held during 1931. It aims to discover young men and young women singers in the United States and give them further training, recognition and reward.

Thousands of young men and women participated in the elimination competitions in more than 1,000 communities during the four Auditions that have so far been held. The awakening of an urge in talented young people to express themselves musically, together with the influence the local auditions have had in broadening cultural interests of the communities conducting them, inspired leaders in musical, educational, and civic life who gave generously of their time and ability in sponsoring the auditions.

The National Sponsorship Committee is composed of the following internationally influential leaders:

Madame Louise Homer, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Elmer James Ottaway, Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Glenn Frank, Reinhold Werrenrath.

California has produced more national finalists of the Audition—those fortunate young women and young men who win the two-year scholarships, one-year scholarships and $25,000 in cash—than any other state. Of the 40 finalists discovered during the four years the Auditions have been held, California has provided 7; Louisiana, 4; Colorado, 3; Texas, 3; Arkansas, Illinois, Michigan, New York and Ohio, 2 each; and Georgia, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia and the District of Columbia, 1 each.

An outstanding feature of the 1930 Audition was the "never-say-die" spirit of the young singers of the nation. More than 50 per cent of those who won the state championships last year had tried in previous auditions and failed, only to try again—and win! Five of the ten finalists of 1930 had tried before. Two had contested in all three previous Auditions.

Mrs. Charles Rich of Rockford is district chairman for the Fifth National Radio Audition sponsored by the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia and Mrs. Rich has appointed Mrs. William Thompson as the Lee county chairman.

Winners of the first place, one young woman and one young man each will receive $5,000 in cash, a gold decoration and two year tuition with an American institute of music or recognized teacher. Second place winners receive $3,000 and one year's tuition; third place winners $2,000 and one year's tuition; fourth place, $1,500 and one year's tuition; fifth place winners will win $1,000 and one year's tuition.

National finalists will be entertained in Washington and New York. District winners, besides gaining the right to go to the Finals at the Atwater Kent Foundation's guests, will receive gold medals. State winners will receive silver medals and be the Atwater Kent Foundation's guests at the district auditions. Local winners will receive Certificates.

In connection with the scholarship awards, the Foundation wishes to emphasize that winners are free to choose any school, conservatory or teacher of music in the United States of recognized standing, he Foundation has no affiliation with any school or teacher and no favorites among the many excellent institutes and high-minded men and women engaged in teaching vocal music.

Age and Amateur Limitations
Any young person who wishes to try for these awards and can comply with the simple qualifications is eligible. There are no entrance fees; no requirements other than those dictated by a sincere desire to find the best young men and best young women singers in the country, to bring them to the attention of their fellow Americans and to give them further opportunity for study and advancement.

Qualifications for those who would enter the Audition are:
1. Entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 25, inclusive. This means that on or before November 1, 1931, each contestant shall have reached his or her eighteenth birthday anniversary, but shall not have reached the twenty-sixth birthday anniversary.

2. They must never have been associated as paid vocal principals with a professional theatrical or operatic company; and must never have been paid vocal principals in any concert held outside the state, or a state adjacent to that in which they were residing at the time of such concert; nor be under contract to sing in such concert. They must be free from all theatrical or musical contracts.

3. Should they reach the National Finals of the Audition, they must plan to follow a musical career. These rules aim to make all amateurs eligible. National finalists of 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930 Auditions may not compete again.

Schedule of Auditions
Local Auditions By September 15
State Auditions October
District Auditions November
National Finals December

Each singer must enter the National Radio Audition by applying to the local audition committee in his community. He must sing within the state where he resides. Every community is entitled to hold a local audition to select its best singers for competition in the next higher audition and local committees will be authorized to conduct the auditions by the State Audition Chairman and Committee. If a singer's community has no local audition committee, National Radio Audition Headquarters—in Washington, D. C., not in Philadelphia—which will cooperate with state workers to give him a hearing.

Local audition winners—one young woman and one young man—will compete in a state audition (unless the state committee has provided for intermediary sectional auditions). State winners will compete at a district audition. (The United States having been divided into five "Districts" for purposes of the Audition). District audition winners will go to New York for the National Finals.

The five districts are composed of the following states:
District No. 1: The New England States and Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

District No. 2: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

District No. 3: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

District No. 4: Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

District No. 5: Arizona, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

State and district auditions will be broadcast. Local contests may be broadcast by a local station, if the local committee so elects. The National Finals in New York will be broadcast nationally during a Sunday Evening Atwater Kent Radio Hour.

THE WOODSHED PASSES.

It is rather odd, when you stop to think about it, that no one has paid much attention so far to the passing of one of the greatest and most distinctive of all American institutions—the woodshed.

A very few years ago the woodshed was a prime feature of all American homes—except, of course, those of the wealthy, who don't count anyhow. But today it is well on the road to extinction. The farmer, to be sure, still has his; but will he keep it long, what with the spreading of gas mains, electric power lines and synthetic gas tanks to the rural regions? The woodshed, obviously, is doomed.

This, in a way, is too bad; for the woodshed had its points. It was not only a good place to keep and split wood. It was an indispensable, all-around handy room; a place where odds and ends of things could be stored, a place where the head of the house, if handy with tools, could make such gadgets as window screens and trellises for the rose bushes, a place where junior could park his bicycle and sister could keep her doll buggy. In other words, it was an exceedingly useful adjunct to the house.

The householder of today, who has no woodshed, feels the lack without knowing exactly what it is that he misses. He puts his lawn mower and his garden tools in the garage—and, every now and then, crushes them by driving carelessly in with his automobile. He does what carpentry work he has to do in his basement—and loses both his patience and his enthusiasm, to say nothing of his breath, running up and down the stairs.

Of course, he does not have to split wood, which is something; yet there are far worse jobs. Indeed, on a rainy afternoon, when the drops patter steadily on the roof of the wood shed, and the place is filled with that indescribable, pleasant odor of wood chips, earth and fresh air, and an open door emphasizes your feeling of snugness by enabling you to glance up from your dry retreat and see everything dripping outside—well, at such times splitting wood is almost fun.

But you don't really need wood to have a woodshed. Some day some astute real estate man is going to discover the usefulness of the woodshed—and he will make a big success by tacking one of these little extra rooms on every house he builds.

CHAINS AND INDEPENDENTS.

Although a great deal is heard these days about the competition which chain stores are giving independent merchants, a recent Retail Trade Bulletin from the Alexander Hamilton Institute indicates that the really efficient independent storekeeper has little to fear from the chains.

A Columbia University investigator recently studied the grocery business in a typical American city, Louisville. He studied the period 1891-1898, before the advent of chain stores, and the period 1921-1928, when chain stores made their greatest growth; and he found that independent grocery stores went out of business at almost exactly the same rate in each period.

A small-town independent grocer, quoted by the Bulletin, remarks:

"If the merchants who have established themselves in town (before the arrival of the chain stores) cannot make a go of it they should fail; for they have been in town long enough to have built up enough prestige and good will to withstand the competition they may receive."

BEAUTY AND THE JURY.

The American beauty prize-winner who recently shot her husband to death in France has been acquitted by a French jury with the proper speed, following her attorney's assertion that she is "too beautiful to be bad." We are, accordingly, hearing the usual complaints about the utter inability of the French to punish charming women who commit murders.

However, there is an old proverb about stones and glass houses.

If you will prod your memory, you will find it almost impossible to recall one single case where an American court showed even mild firmness toward a charming young woman in a homicide case. A few women have been executed for murder in this country—but were they young and charming? They were not. Beautiful murderesses, here as in France, usually go scot free. We have no occasion to look down our noses at this latest French verdict.

Limitation of armaments has not yet gone so far as to include merchant vessels, but it is evident that merchant fleets are indispensable auxiliaries to war fleets.—Captain George W. Steele, Jr., naval officer.

For those who have to dress for the occasion, attending King George's court is indeed a trial.

Racing is essential for air progress.—Colonel Eddie Rickenbacker.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Travel Man said, "Well, my son, if you think it would be some fun to eat a dish of seafood, we will have some for our lunch. But in the meantime, let's walk around the town and see what can be found. I'll take you any place you wish has anyone a hunch?"

"I have!" cried Scouty. "Yes siree! You always can depend on me to make a good suggestion. Here is what I have in mind. If seafood is plentiful, I would like to start out on a hike and find some stream where it is caught. Some strange things we may find."

"Me too," said wee Carpy. "Come let's go." The Travel man replied, "I know the very spot you are thinking of. It isn't very far away. We will see clam diggers by the shore, all digging clams up by the shore. I rather think that this will be an interesting day."

Just then a funny cart drove by.

The Tynmites heard someone cry. "Hey, Wait! We want to take a ride." It was the Travel Man. The driver of the cart stopped quick. Said Clowny, "Gee, this will be slick." The driver said he'd take them, so up to the cart they ran.

A happy crowd soon jogged along and then the lads broke into song. They made up very funny words that made the driver smile. "We're going to watch clam diggers stoop and dig up clams for fine clam soup. You'll find this band of Tynmites joining right in, after while."

And then they reached a pretty shore and hopped out to their feet once more. "Look there!" cried Carpy. "There's a maid. She is digging clams. I'll bet. Let's watch her. I'm sure she won't mind. She smiled at us. I'll bet she is kind. She is going to wade out in the big stream and get her feet all wet!"

(The Tynmites see some more water sights in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

RUSSIA'S ASSEMBLY

On June 12, 1917, a council of 61 members of the presidency of Koshkin, a member of the Duma, met to prepare for Russia's Constituent Assembly.

This assembly met not only to draft Russia's permanent constitution, but also to solve certain immediate problems, the chief of which were the questions of nationalities and the conditions of the transfer of lands of the nobles to the peasantry.

In the preparatory council sat a group of constitutional specialists, also deputies from the army and from all the political parties, representatives of Jews, Ukrainians, the Poles and other races and also a representative of the women, the famous feminist, Mme. Shishkin Yaelin.

An important reform proclaimed on this day was the introduction of the small unit of local self-government, in which all classes might participate equally. It was decided to allow the former emperor and members of the imperial family the privilege of voting.

CONTACT GLASSES

In recent years the technology of creating and using lenses to correct defects of the eye has been carried to a remarkable degree of perfection.

Going still further, it is now proposed to use what are called contact glasses to correct certain types of visual defects.

Contact glasses are worn not as the common glass of today is worn on the bridge of the nose and at some distance from the eye, but in contact with the eye ball, the rims of the glasses being between the eye ball proper and the eyelids.

The suggestion for this form of eye glass appears to have been made as long ago as 1887.

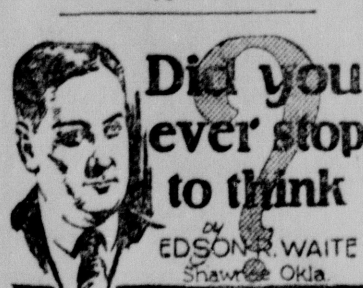

Technical difficulties in the production of such glasses made it difficult to test out the practicability of this suggestion.

Now, however, the technical problems have been overcome and contact glasses are a practical reality.

Contact glasses are shaped to conform in a general way to the shape of the outer portion of the eye ball.

helped only to a slight extent by ordinary glasses.

CIVIL LIBERTY RULINGS CAUSE GREAT INTEREST

The Supreme Court Made Three Such Decisions During Term

Washington.—(UP)—While decisions dealing with the criminal law and with the personal liberties of individuals comprise but a small part of the cases passed on by the United States Supreme Court, these questions generally are of the greatest public interest.

The past year the court passed on, directly or indirectly, a large number of such questions. Those dealing with civil liberties attracted the widest attention.

The extent and the violence of the dissent which three civil liberty cases engendered within the court itself, too, served to stress this phase of its activity.

Allen Ruling
Outstanding of these were the cases of Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, Dwight professor of theology at Yale University, and Miss Marie Averill Bland, a New York City nurse. Here the court, in its most emphatic 5-4 decision, ruled that all aliens with conscientious scruples against war were not entitled to citizenship.

This trend, attributed to the accession to the bench of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, both described as "liberals" since they had voted with the noted "liberals" Justices Oliver Wendell Holmes and Louis D. Brandeis, failed to operate in the Bland-MacIntosh case.

The other civil liberty case which attracted great attention was that of Yip Hing, a youthful member of the Communist party, who was sentenced to jail in California for violation of that state's "Red flag" law.

"Vague" Clause
The young instructor, first victim of the 12-year-old statute, was given a new trial on the charge of displaying a red flag each morning at a children's camp in the San Bernardino mountains. The court refused to rule the act was entirely invalid but held one clause of it as "vague."

This decision, also written by Hughes, produced two violent dissents from Justices James C. McReynolds and Pierce Butler, two conservative members.

By refusing to review a case from Arkansas the court gave its tacit approval to the Democratic party rule in that state barring negroes from participation in organization and primary elections. It had previously held unconstitutional the Texas statute barring negroes from the polls.

In the realm of criminal jurisprudence the court handed down several opinions which may prove of widespread importance.

Impartial Trial
The right of the criminal to a trial whose impartiality and lack of prejudice had been thoroughly proven was maintained in the case of Alfred Scott Aldridge, a negro convicted of slaying a white policeman in Washington. The trial judge refused to ask prospective jurors whether they had any racial prejudice.

The power of an attorney to make a thorough inquiry into the mode of life of a witness under cross-examination was sustained in the case of J. W. Alford, convicted of mail fraud in Los Angeles. Alford was given a new trial because a trial judge refused to ask prospective jurors whether they had any racial prejudice.

In one of its closing sessions the court ruled emphatically that in removal proceedings the committing magistrate has no power whatever to pass on the validity of an indictment. It thereby required Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia Pa., to return to Washington to face a contempt of the Senate charge growing out of his refusal to answer questions during the probe of William H. Vare's Senatorial campaign expenditures.

National Highway Work Moves Swiftly

Washington, June 11.—(AP)—The nation's emergency highway construction program is four months ahead of 1930 and has furnished employment for about 265,000 men.

The cost of federal aid projects approved thus far in the plan to aid the idle is $241,200,000. It is made up of $112,450,000 regular aid funds, $74,500,000 emergency money provided by congress at the last session, and $54,250,000 state funds.

With the $80,000,000 emergency money advanced to enable states to take up immediately a greater portion of the increased federal aid appropriations, the program equals projects started and approved up to October 1 last year. It exceeds by many millions the entire 1929 construction work.

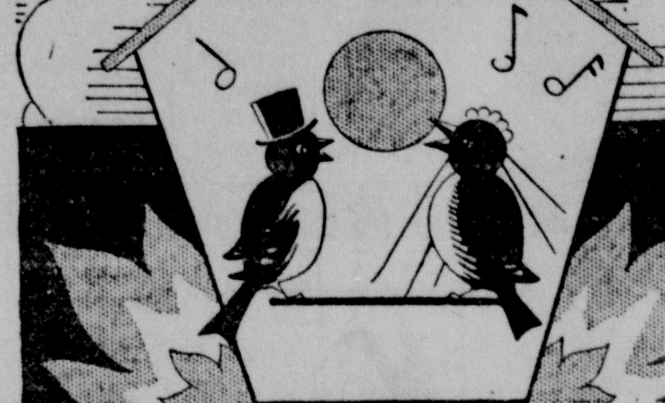

In April this year the federal aid employment totalled 98,000 men against 39,000 in the same month last year. The total of both state and federal aid during April was 265,000.

LOEB HAS BIRTHDAY.
Joliet, Ill., June 11.—(UP)—Richard Loeb, who was convicted with Nathan Leopold, Jr., in 1924 or murdering Bobby Frank, one of the most sensational and widely discussed crimes in American history, "celebrated" his birthday in Stateville prison today. It was the seventh birthday the youthful heir to millions had spent in prison. He was allowed no special privileges.

HARDING RITES FINDS NATION'S VAST OIL RESERVES RECOVERED AND EX-SECRETARY FALL AT LAST FACING JAIL

COURTS RETURN PROPERTIES WORTH HALF BILLION BUT SINCLAIR AND DOHENY ESCAPE PUNISHMENT FOR BRIBERY OF PRESIDENT'S BETRAYER

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two stories on what has happened to the famous "Ohio gang" and the men who betrayed President Harding, whose tomb at Marion, O., is now dedicated by President Hoover. Today's story tells where the great oil scandals stand now.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

Washington—After nearly a decade of Senate investigation, criminal prosecution and civil suits to recover the Teapot Dome and Elks Hill oil lands, no one has yet gone to jail for his part in the conspiracy to hand over these valuable tracts to private interests, although ex-Secretary Albert B. Fall, at last, seems dangerously near it. Fall, convicted for accepting a bribe in connection with the oil leases while a member of the Harding cabinet, is under sentence of a year in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Harry F. Sinclair, of Teapot Dome fame, went to jail for seven and one half months, but that was for contempt of the Senate in refusing to testify before it and contempt of a District of Columbia court in hiring detectives to shadow a jury. On the bribery-conspiracy charge, Sinclair stands acquitted as does E. L. Doheny, who blandly admitted that he expected to make $100,000,000 profit on the great Elk Hill lease.

But these two great naval oil reserves are safely back in government hands, civil suits to recapture them having been successful. Nearly a half billion dollars is their estimated value, the Teapot Dome reserve in Wyoming being appraised at $100,000,000 and the Elk Hills reserve in California at $300,000,000.

The government also has recovered some $24,000,000 in cash, oil and steel tanks from the Doheny companies and about $6,000,000 in the same from Sinclair companies. These represent the principal recovery suits.

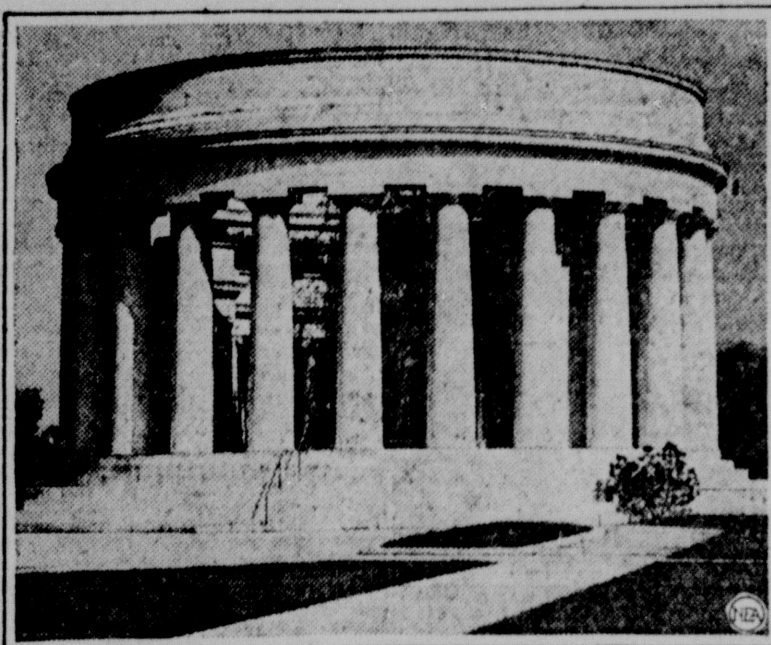

Three presidents—Roosevelt, Taft, and Wilson—had a hand in building up these great naval oil reserves, intended for the nation's security in time of war, that Secretary Fall yielded up for $100,000 that Doheny sent him in a little black bag and $233,000 that Sinclair gave him in Liberty Bonds. Maybe there was more involved, but with the exception of a $25,000 unsecured loan that Sinclair made to Fall and $10,000 that he advanced him for a European trip, this is all the records actually show.

Whether this gigantic corruption plot was hatched in a hotel room at the Chicago convention that nominated President Harding in 1920 or after his election is a matter of dispute. But the fact remains that hardly had Harding arrived in Washington for his inauguration in March, 1921, with the "Ohio gang" trooping at his heels, than the wheels were put in motion. In May, 1921, President Harding was persuaded—on the grounds of military wisdom and amid wild tales of a Japanese "war scare"—to sign a secret executive order transferring the custody of the great oil reserves from the Navy Department to the Interior Department. That put them in Albert B. Fall's hands.

The rest is easy. In December Doheny sends his son (now dead) to Fall with a little black bag containing $100,000 in cash. Exactly 12 days later, Doheny gets from Fall a secret lease on the great Elk Hills reserve.

Even earlier—in November, 1921—Sinclair and others have organized the dummy Continental Trading Co. Ltd., of Canada. These men, by buying 33,000,000 barrels of oil from a producer for $1.50 and selling it back to the stockholders of their own companies for $1.75, stand to realize a quiet profit of 25 cents a barrel of about $8,000,000. As $100,000 bills excite suspicion, part of this is converted into $1000 Liberty Bonds.

Late in 1921 Sinclair visits Fall at his New Mexico ranch and the first lease is drawn. In April, 1922, the lease is secretly signed in Washington and Sinclair gets the navy's oil. On May 10, 1922, Sinclair comes back to Washington in his private car, Fall sends his son-in-law down to the station and Sinclair gives his brown package containing $198,000 in Liberty Bonds, every dollar of which came from the Continental Trading Company. A few days later the son-in-law goes to New York and gets $35,000 more

A few days later the son-in-law goes to New York and gets $35,000 more in bonds from Sinclair. The rest is known. A suspicious Senate, tipped off by Carl Magee, a New Mexico newspaper editor who had noticed the sudden prosperity around Fall's broken down ranch, investigated and finally the shameful story came out under the relentless questioning of Senator Walsh.

More names were dragged in. Secretary of Navy Denby, who had dumbly and innocently approved the transfer, resigned. Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt said he had been hoodwinked and "won over." His brother, Archie Roosevelt, who had been in Sinclair's employ for six years, took the stand. He said he had become suspicious and resigned when Sinclair's secretary told him Sinclair had given Fall "six or eight thousand dollars." The secretary insisted that he had said merely that Sinclair gave Fall "six or eight cows" for his ranch.

E. B. McLean, Washington D. C. newspaper publisher, having been trapped by Senator Walsh in the error of his statement that he loaned $100,000 to Fall, Doheny himself took the stand. Amid copious weeping and a story of how he was merely helping an old friend of 30 years standing, he admitted the $100,000 "little black bag" transaction, and insisted it was a friendly and innocent loan.

Sinclair refused to testify and the Senate cited him for contempt. The trail of the Liberty Bonds led further. Will Hays, who was Harding's postmaster general and chairman of the Republican National Committee, faced a big deficit after the Harding campaign. In the summer of 1923, so he later admitted, he accepted from Sinclair $185,000 of these bonds as a loan, divided them into parts, gave them to rich Republicans, accepted their personal checks in return and used this money to pay off the Harding campaign debts.

Andrew Mellon, receiving $50,000 worth of the bonds, immediately sent them back, but made a donation of $50,000. James A. Patten, of Chicago, accepted a $25,000 batch of bonds in return for his check, but later, realizing what had happened, he gave $25,000 to a hospital. There were others not so conscientious.

"This synchrony," Senator Walsh has said, "suggests at once that the extraordinary sum yielded up by Sinclair at that time was not altogether voluntarily donated, and that either hope or fear—if not gratitude—stimulated his generosity.... he stood in dire need of friends at court."

The record of what transpired in the "Ohio gang's" heyday in Washington holds nothing comparable to Fall's perfidy except that of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, the first director of the Veterans' Bureau. He came to Washington from Marion, with the Harding following—and left for Leavenworth and the federal penitentiary. He served two years.

In the saturnalia of barefaced stealing which Senate investigators say cost the American public $225,000,000 in graft and waste during his two years of spending a half billion dollars for hospitals and other relief of distressed war veterans, Forbes seemed to know no limit.

Enough floor was to polish half the state of South Dakota was bought, stored and then thrown out—"because it constituted a fire hazard." Hospital plans were razed so many times that one great institution was almost built without a kitchen. Bales of linen towels costing 20 cents each were being brought in the front door of the Perryville, Md., supply depot, while similar ones were being sold out the back door for 3 1/2 cents.

Forbes' history was remarkable. He was a deserter from the army, during which time he actually made rousing Fourth of July speeches. He was arrested, imprisoned, forgiven, went to France, returned as a Pacific coast contractor and eventually became commissioner of public works in Hawaii. There he met Senator Harding when the latter came on a congressional tour of inspection, quickly won his friendship and followed him back to Ohio as one of his warmest friends.

Elected President, Harding made this friend the head of the greatest money-spending bureau in the government's history. But Forbes, like so many of Harding's other trusted friends, forgot the meaning of the word.

New York society people, financial leaders and theatrical luminaries. In spite of several strenuous attempts to obtain a ruling directly passing on its validity, the much discussed Jones five and ten law remained unchallenged, as far as the court was concerned, through out the session. The court has so persistently refused to scrutinize the validity of the law in any case so far presented that there seems more than an even chance that such scrutiny will not be forthcoming until another decision similar to that of Judge Clark's.

cedings against the distillery, warehouse and denaturing plant of the Waterloo, N. Y., Distilling Corp. The property was seized as a penalty for the diversion of specially denatured alcohol for beverage purposes under an internal revenue statute.

In affirming this procedure the government was in effect authorized to proceed with numerous other similar cases which would impose a severe penalty on dry law violators.

In the Waterloo case the court disposed of arguments that in diverting specially denatured alcohol the company was not diverting potable alcohol and that the forfeiture of the property after its owners had been sentenced for violating the law was a double penalty.

When the court ruled that no penalty was being imposed on the owners of the property but on the property itself it pointed out a distinction between this case and that of Anthony La France, New Orleans, La., in which the court found that certain penalties under the Willis Campbell Act serve as a double punishment even though they were described as tax penalties.

Brewery Tax Cases
In a series of brewery tax cases the court ruled that the brewers were entitled to deduct allowances for the obsolescence of their property due to prohibition from their tax returns for those years.

An adverse ruling to the government was also given in the Go-Bart Importing Company case in New York, one of its major liquor ring cases, which threatened to draw into its web not only Count Maxence de Polignac, a French nobleman and champagne sales agent, but scores of

CLARK DECISION OVERSHADOWED ALL DRY CASES

A Supreme Court Ruling Backed Up Validity of Amendment

Washington—(UP)—The activities of the Supreme Court in deciding questions growing out of the enforcement of prohibition were overshadowed during its recently concluded session by its own decision in the famous Clark case.

For the first time since the famous Rhode Island cases more than a decade ago the court, which had remained aloof from any further ruling on the validity of the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act, was forced to act when Judge William Clark of Newark, N. J., held the amendment was invalidly put in the put the question of validity squarely up to the court.

The effect of Clark's ruling was to put the question of validity squarely Settles Attitude

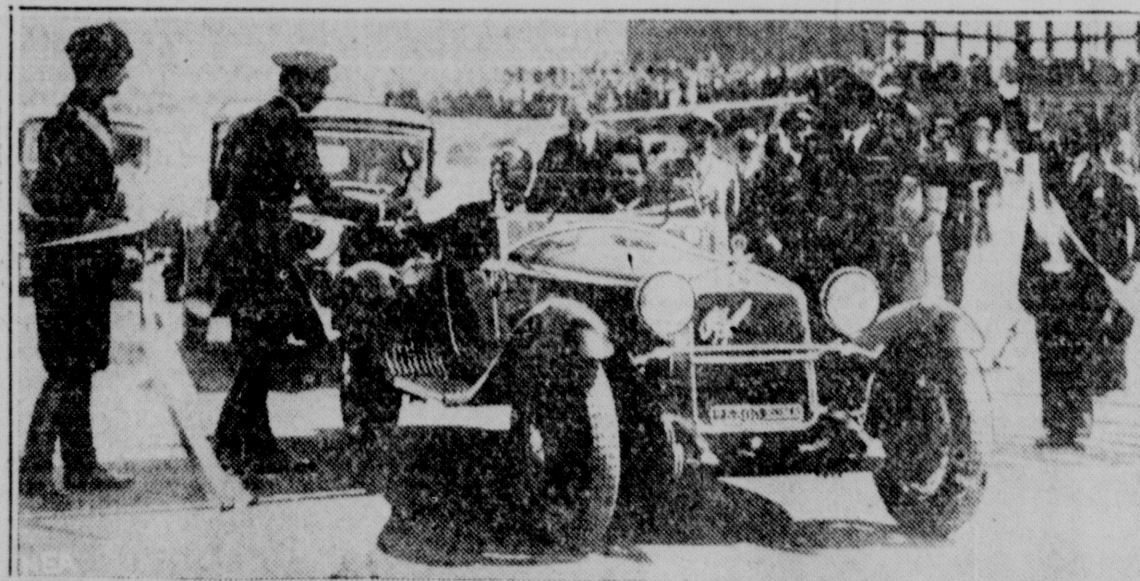

While many legal minds had previously expressed the belief that the issue squarely raised would bring a ruling unfavorable to the prohibition forces, the court dispelled that opinion in a forceful and explicit decision. It appeared to settle for all time possible doubt as to the attitude of the court toward the validity of the dry laws.

In substance the court ruled that there never was and never could be any successful attack on the 18th Amendment because of the method by which it was adopted. It found, with a considerable degree of emphasis on its findings, that there was no ambiguity whatever to the Fifth article of the Federal Constitution which gave Congress the power to elect whether constitutional amendments were to be approved by popular election or by ratification by state legislatures.

Despite the often noted change in the personnel of the bench since the delivery of the Rhode Island decision with a purported swing toward liberalism, there was no dissent from this opinion delivered by the junior Justice Owen J. Roberts. Alongside the Clark case most of the court's rulings affecting the prohibition battlefield piled into insignificance.

This was due in a large extent, to the fact that after many years of passing on the elaborate questions raised under the law enforcement program not many simpler matters of legal right remained undecided.

Enforcement Weapon
The court gave a substantial enforcement weapon to the government when it sustained the forfeiture pro-

Mussolini Speeds Up the Fascisti

Premier Benito Mussolini is not too busy with his campaign against anti-Fascists to attend the various ceremonies and dedications which would be incomplete without the presence of Il Duce. Here you see him in the role of race driver at the opening of the new Littorium speedway. After exchanging greeting with track officials, Mussolini delighted the spectators by driving his own racing car around the course at top speed.

Baseball Gossip

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

As long as the Washington Senators continue to play the kind of baseball they have been displaying for the past month or so, Philadelphia's Athletics are not going to make a runaway of the American League pennant race. The A's have compiled a remarkable record so far, running up 35 victories to 12 defeats, but the Senators have remained right on their heels.

Washington's average today was .660, no mean mark in any league, and the Senators were only .344, games behind after six straight victories. The only fly in the Senator ointment seems to be the refusal of the Athletics to lose a few more games, for the team from the Capital has been hitting at a terrific clip, fielding up with the best and getting probably the best pitching in the league. Nine Washington pitchers went the route in succession before Jones failed to last on Wednesday.

The Senators clipped a full game from Philadelphia's lead yesterday by trouncing Cleveland 12 to 5. They piled up 15 hits in effective bunches. The only drawback was a slight injury to Joe Cronin, start young shortstop, which may keep him out for a day or two.

The margin the St. Louis Cardinals hold over their National League rivals, Chicago and New York, also was clipped to 3½ games yesterday as Socks Seibold held the Cards to four hits and gave Boston a three to nothing victory. The two teams tied for second place turned in a victory apiece.

Bob Smith gave the Cubs some highly effective mound work and Chicago beat Philadelphia four to two despite Chuck Klein's 15th homer of the season. The Giants had to go eleven innings to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates but came through with a three run rally at the finish to win 8 to 6. Bob Farrell, Giant catcher, drove in the final run with the 1,000th hit of his major league career.

Cincinnati and Brooklyn also waged an eleven inning battle, the Reds winning 2 to 1. Silas Johnson, stocky young Cincinnati hurler, got the better of Dazzy Vance and Jack Quinn on the mound.

Wallace Hebert, Browns—Started first big league game and beat Athletics, 8-2, allowing seven hits.

sure what will happen. "But Big Ben can run, when he is right. Don't make any mistake about that. I am not kidding you when I say this boy is the greatest I have ever seen."

After Eastman forced Vic Williams of U. S. C. to a world record quarter-mile and then returned 55 minutes later to breeze a winning half mile in 1:54.4, the critical eastern boys were ready to take Dink's words literally and add a few embellishments of their own. For sheer beauty of style and as a half-mile I would not class Eastman with the great Englishman, Douglas G. A. Lowe, the nearest thing to poetry of motion that modern tracks have known, not excepting the well known Paavo Nurmi.

However, Eastman has the stuff to be unbeatable at the 440 and the 880 for his next two years of college competition. He is better now than Ted Meredith was when the famous Penn flier was a sophomore. Meredith won the I. C. A. A. A. 400 in his first varsity season in 1924. Eastman did his trial heat under heavy wraps in 48.3 and was at least 47.8 as he forced Williams to hit the tape in the final in 47.4, equalling the mark Meredith set at Cambridge in his senior year.

JUST A KID—Big Ben is just a gangling kid now, with great natural equipment, a big shock of sandy hair and a modest disposition. Not even his college mates can make him think he has done anything out of the ordinary. He likes to run, but has considerable to learn yet about the pace. Williams is more of the greyhound type, with greater experience than Eastman and a terrific finishing "kick." These two ought to restore your Uncle Samuel's supremacy in the Olympic middle distance races in 1932, something your uncle has not enjoyed since Reidpath won the 440 and Meredith the 880 at Stockholm in 1912.

The east yielded middle distance honors to these far western fliers at Franklin Field for the first time in the history of the 55-year old I. C. A. A. A. Games. Hendrixson of California twice won the 440 in 1920-21, but Eastman was the first coast runner to break through the old guard's phalanx in the 800.

MORE LANDS FOR GAME AND FISH FOR STATE URGED

Commission of Which Rep. Allen Is Member Submitted Report

Springfield, Ill., June 12—(UP)—Acquisition of land by the state in all parts of Illinois to be used as sanctuaries for song and game birds and wild animals, for reforestation and for public recreation is recommended in a report presented to the Illinois General Assembly by the Uniform Fish and Game Commission appointed at the last session of the state legislature. The commission also recommended that additional game wardens be placed on duty in various parts of the state to enforce existing game laws.

The commission reported that it found overwhelming evidence of the rapid decrease of game, fur bearing animals and game birds. At the same time, its report declared, they found the army of hunters and fishermen increasing with almost equal rapidity. The sale of hunting and fishing licenses in Illinois has increased almost 40,000 per year since 1925 and in 1930 reached 800,000.

Hunting and fishing have entered the ranks of big business in Illinois, according to the report, which declared that expenditures in the state, based on the number of licenses sold, is in excess of $50,000,000 a year.

More Sanctuaries Needed—Additional rest grounds and sanctuaries for migratory water fowl should be established in Illinois, according to the report, which suggests that such a program should be developed in cooperation with other states and with the Federal government.

Sportsmen who have made tremendous investments in duck clubs are urged to cooperate through the state and national government and through private enterprises with the Canadian government to assure the permanent establishment of vast breeding areas in Canada which must be saved for all time from drainage and agricultural development.

The commission made the following recommendations to the legislature:

1. Use revenue derived from license to buy land in all sections of the state which would be used as sanctuaries, for reforestation and for public recreation, shooting and fishing grounds.

2. Adequate funds should be made available for development and maintenance game farms at the state institutions where suitable land, water and inmate help are available.

3. Additional rest grounds and sanctuaries for migratory water fowl should be established.

4. Restoration of the waste lands in Illinois should be developed through enlarged appropriations to the Division of Forestry, Department of Conservation.

5. A legislative game commission should be appointed to conduct a game survey and investigation in cooperation with the United States biological survey.

Senator Earl B. Searcy, Springfield, is chairman of the commission, and Charles Mansfield, also of Springfield, is secretary. Other members were Senators Arthur A. Miles, Rosciore, and Ray Paddock, Wauconda; former Senators E. J. Hughes, Chicago, and William F. Jewell, Lewis; Representatives M. B. Lohmann, Pekin, and H. C. Allen, Lyndon; and former Representatives Reed F. Cutler, Lewistown; and E. P. Petri, Belleville.

Originally the thimble was called the thumb bell, because it was worn on the thumb.

Lindberghs Inspect Plane for Flight to the Orient

Colonel and Mrs. Charles R. Lindbergh were eager to inspect their Lockheed-Sirus monoplane after pontoons had been installed for their "vacation" flight to the Orient, and the celebrated pair here are shown in their first picture with the remodeled craft. The Colonel climbed into the cockpit, handled the controls, conferred with mechanics and made arrangements for final alterations before he takes the ship into the air for a series of test flights. Whatever route finally is chosen for their long trip, most of it must lie over water.

Melhorn Only One To Profit With New Ball

Pinevald, N. J., June 12—(AP)—Perhaps to his own surprise, Wild Bill Melhorn has discovered that he can drive farther with the new "balloon" golf ball than he can with the old. Melhorn, along with Wiffy Cox, and two amateurs, T. Philip Perkins and Geo. Voigt, played a special match here yesterday in which both balls were given a thorough test, the new one being used half the time and the old one the other half. Steel tape measurements of the players' drives were taken.

Melhorn averaged 241 yards with the new ball and 239 with the old but the other three all had greater distance with the old ball. Perkins, the longest driver of them all, averaged 253 yards with the old ball and 233 with the new; Cox, 222, and Voigt, 226 and 213.

The difference in ball, however, had little effect on the outcome of the match in which Voigt and Cox teamed up to win, 5 and 3. The match was won almost entirely on Voigt's sensational work on the greens. Voigt had eight one-putt greens, five with the new and three with the old. He broke the course record with a 70 while the other three all had 73s.

Compton Ball Teams Play Sunday Morning

The married men of Compton have reorganized their baseball team in an effort to overcome the triumph scored by the Compton "Oilers" two weeks ago when the latter organization scored a 15 to 5 defeat to their credit despite the fact that "Flip" Corwin struck out nine of the regulars. The Oilers team is composed of high school students and alumni who have gathered together a fast organization.

Corwin will again pitch for the married men and Henry will do the catching. The remainder of the lineup will see Leslie Miller at first base, Schneider at second; Jack Tribbets at third; Lloyd McDougal at short; H. Miller in right field; Carnahan at center and Cliff Eddy in left with Henry Chaon and John Banks on the bench as utility players. The game will be called promptly at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Billy Papke, Jr. In Debut, Lost Decision

Chicago, June 12—(AP)—Billy Papke, Jr., son of the former middle weight champion of the world, needs another start in Chicago to win the acclaim his dad gained here.

Billy, Jr., son of the old "Kewanee Thunderbolt," who won the title from Stanley Ketchell and lost it back to him again in 1908, lost a close 10 round decision, to Edgar Norman, Norwegian light heavyweight, last at Mills Stadium in his first bout here. Billy, Jr., fought a courageous fight but yielded to Norman's superior experience.

Another ten-rounder resulted in a decision victory for Tug Phillips of Pittsburgh, over Relampo Saguro, Cuban welterweight.

Forty-Eight Held On Liquor Charge

Joplin, Mo., June 11—(AP)—Forty-eight persons, described by government agents as members of an alleged wholesale liquor ring formed by Al Capone with headquarters at Kansas City, were under indictment here today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibitory liquor law. The indictment, listing 121 alleged over acts to violate the law, was returned by a federal grand jury yesterday.

W. L. Vanderventer, United States District Attorney, said last night he had received information many of those indicted were planning to plead guilty. Those indicted include John Lazla, Kansas City, Democratic politician, June Kathrens, transfer company head, and Miss Rosemary Lyons, delinquent tax collector of Kansas City. The Northside Finance Company, Kansas City, also was charged in the indictment with a part in the alleged conspiracy. The names of 11 persons indicted were withheld until their arrest.

SPONSORS CAMEL RACES

PARIS—(UP)—With a view to producing bigger and better camels, Mrs. J. S. Harlan of New York is sponsoring camel races in the Sahara. The first race took place last year from Ghardaia to El Golea, a distance of nearly 300 miles. Two sim-lar races have taken place this spring. The report so far, covering the distance, is a day and a night. Mrs. Harlan's interesting initiative has been congratulated.

HAS DRESS SUIT "BLUES" Hamilton, Ont. (UP)—When Magistrate Burbidge issued a mandate to the city that everyone on the streets of Hamilton after midnight without a dress suit was a prima facie vagrant the result was unexpected. Robert Jackson was arrested a short time later on a charge of stealing a dress suit.

WORLD NOTABLES AT DEDICATION OF LINCOLN TOMB

Springfield Prepares To Entertain Famous On Dedication Day

By DON E. CHAMBERLAIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Springfield, Ill., June 12 (UP)—World notables, foreign diplomats, governors of several states, state executives and members of the Illinois State Legislature will join with President Herbert Hoover in paying tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln when the nation's chief executive rededicates the Emancipator's reconstructed tomb in famous Oak Ridge cemetery here next Wednesday.

While not listing all distinguished persons who are expected to attend, it is understood that Governor L. L. Emerson anticipates the presence here of representatives of the British and French governments, several Latin-American countries and men famous in American lines of industry.

UNUSUAL GOODNESS OF FAMOUS COFFEE INTRIGUES EXPERTS

Find That Delicious Flavor is
The Result of Patented
Roasting Process

Probably no coffee sold today has enjoyed the success of Hills Bros. Coffee. Everywhere it has been introduced it has become a leader.

This popularity lies in the fact that Hills Bros. Coffee has a delicious, uniform flavor such as no other coffee has. While the rare blend is partly responsible for this, the patented process, by which it is roasted, is one factor that has made this matchless, uniform flavor possible in every pound.

Instead of roasting in bulk, Hills Bros. roast only a few pounds at a time. By this process—the degree of roast, the continuous flow of coffee through the roasters, never vary. Hence the name of this process—Controlled Roasting.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee. It is always fresh because it is packed in vacuum cans from which air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

states of Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin.

Big Day For Illinois
To Illinois the event is to be a big day for it not only brings within its borders a living President of the United States but also discloses with further emphasis that it was in this state that Lincoln grew up and resided when he was chosen to be one of the country's greatest presidents.

The rededication ceremonies at which Mr. Hoover will deliver the only speech except perhaps for an introductory note by Governor Emerson, will form the concluding part of a program of more than a year to make the tomb one of the world's outstanding shrines for advocates of liberty.

The tomb, which was reconstructed at a cost to the state of $75,000 has been so remodelled that stately corridors, adorned with impressive statues of Lincoln, depicting his entire career, lead the visitor to the open sarcophagus chamber.

Just a few feet below the chamber lies the casket containing Lincoln's body, encased in a steel concrete cage. The placing of the body in concrete was done in 1900 to prevent repetition of attempts of ghoulies to steal it. Such an attempt was made in 1876 but was frustrated.

First Dedicated in '74
The tomb is located on a knoll which overlooks the cemetery and stands just as it did when the original memorial was dedicated by President U. S. Grant, in 1874. Four groups of statuary portraying the four branches of the armed service in the War of the Rebellion, man the corners of the structure.

An elevated plaza extends from the base of the monument and is graced with a bronze reproduction of the famous Borglum statue of Lincoln's head.

It is from this plaza that Mr. Hoover will deliver his rededictory address with a score of newspapermen, representing press associations, and publications in all parts of the world, microphones of two national radio chains and news reels on hand to give publicity to his remarks.

Below on the slope of the knoll and on greenwards surrounding the monument will be thousands of visitors from all parts of the country, many of them including pilgrims who have come from afar to join in the tribute to Lincoln, who will hear the president's address through loud speakers that will be especially erected for the occasion.

MARRIAGE TEMPLE
Harrodsburg, Ky., June 12 (UP)—This historic Kentucky town, founded in 1774, will dedicate today the Lincoln Marriage Temple, a chapel sheltering the little one-room log cabin in which Nancy Hanks and Thomas Lincoln, the parents of Abraham Lincoln, were married.

The ceremonies, to be broadcast over a NBC hook-up beginning at 3:15 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, will be featured by an address by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak.

Another feature will be a re-enactment of the wedding with the same Methodist ritual used as was followed by the Rev. Jesse Head, a Methodist minister of the pioneer town of Springfield, Ky., in the original ceremony. The Stagecrafters, a dramatic group from Transylvania University, Lexington, will take the dramatic roles.

A Lincoln dinner in the evening will assemble about 600 distinguished guests.

The Temple itself stands just outside the replica of old Fort Harrod, the pioneer blockhouse, which houses numerous relics of early days in the "dark and bloody ground." The building was erected with a gift of $8,000 from Mrs. Edmund Burke Ball, Muncie, Ind., and is designed to preserve the historic cabin from decay. The temple of is colonial brick and is modeled after the Lulaburg church, built by the pioneers of Montgomery county on the banks of a stream which they named after the river of Gulliver's Travels.

In Form Of Cross
It is erected in the form of a cross with a simple spire, the 12 corners of the building representing the 12 Apostles.

The cornerstone of the temple was laid in March by Mrs. Flem D. Sampson, wife of the Kentucky Governor. Whereabouts of the Lincoln marriage cabin had remained unknown until about 20 years ago when N. C. Curry, a Harrodsburg wholesale grocer, heard a back country legend concerning a log house near Beachland, Washington county.

Curry and others investigated and became convinced the legend was true. The cabin, unused, stood on a farm which Nancy Hanks' guardian, Dick Barry, had cleared in the wilderness. The cabin was removed to Harrodsburg in 1911.

Among distinguished visitors expected here are Gov. Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky; Dr. William L. Bryan, President of the University of Indiana; Dr. Albert Bushnell

Hart, noted historian, and Mrs. Flora Myers Gilentine, Historian General of the D. A. R.

An alarm clock has been invented by a German, that switches on an electric light when the bell rings.

FOUR ROUTES TO ORIENT STUDIED BY "LONE EAGLE"

Has Not Decided Route He And Wife Will Take On Flight

Washington, June 12.—(AP)—Possible aerial routes to the Orient are being studied closely here by Charles A. Lindbergh in preparation for another trail blazing flight.

With Mrs. Lindbergh he expects to cross over either the turbulent Atlantic, the broad Pacific or the frozen wastes of the Arctic Ocean in his stream-lined and pontoon-fitted Lockheed monoplane before the summer ends.

Altogether four routes are being considered. A final decision will depend upon the establishment of satisfactory fuel bases. One route would take the young couple over the Atlantic to Greenland and thence to Spitzbergen and across Siberia to Japan.

The second would be along the waterway of northern Canada to the northmost fringe of the Alaskan coast and over a portion of the Arctic Ocean to Siberia.

The third would send the fliers up the Canadian coast to the Aleutian Islands. Should they land near Kamchatka the route would then be southward to Japan. The fourth possibility, in which Lindbergh said he was particularly interested, was the route across Alaska, the Behring Sea to Siberia and then to the Japanese Islands.

NORTH PACIFIC ROUTE

Washington, D. C.—Alaska's island-hogged Inland Passage, the Aleutian chain, Kamchatka, the Kurile Islands, and Japan—these the stepping stones that the Lindberghs will use in crossing from America to the Orient, if they follow the usual north Pacific airplane route, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. This was the route followed by the U. S. Army fliers in crossing the Pacific on their round-the-world flight in 1924.

"The thousands of islands of Alaska's southeastern 'panhandle' are rugged and offer few places suitable for land planes to alight," continues the bulletin. "But for the plane equipped with pontoons there are innumerable resting places in bays and coves. Harbors with gasoline supplies are available at a number of ports in this section of Alaska, including Ketchikan, Sitka and Juneau."

1,500 Mile Sweep of Islands
"Eastward across the Gulf of Alaska, Kodiak Village on Kodiak Island furnishes the last possible base before the beginning of the long crescent sweep of the Aleutian Islands which extend for 1,500 miles almost to the peninsula of Kamchatka, eastern outpost of the Soviet Union."

"In winging their way westward above the Aleutians, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh will be back-tracking an important migration of 186 years ago and probably other even more important prehistoric migrations that brought to the New World the forebears of the American Indians."

"After the survivors of Berling's discovery voyage to Alaska in 1741, returned to Kamchatka, Russian adventurers poured into the islands in search of furs, exploiting, enslaving and killing the natives. Few survived and since that day the islands have been sparsely settled, many of them uninhabited."

"It was because they were opened up from the east that the islands are known as the Aleutians. The name is derived from that of a big Kamchatkan cape."

Fogs Hamper Flying
"Although the Aleutians are as far north as central Canada; their climate is not severely cold. Rather they may be said to be always very 'chilly, damp and foggy.' Fog is anything but an asset to the flyer, but the Aleutian fog has the good point, at least, of being less dense than the fog of more southern lands."

Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, is the first harbor of importance in the islands. This deep, land-locked harbor is one of the finest in the north and has played an important part as a way station for ships during the gold rushes to the Yukon and to Nome. It is connected with the rest of the world by a radio station. Dutch Harbor is on the shortest route from Seattle to Tokyo and with the establishment of coaling stations may conceivably become such a Pacific way station for the northern route as Honolulu is for the southern."

Atka is Half-Way House
"Atka, several hundred miles farther west, is approximately the half way house of the Aleutian chain and on it is the last settlement but one west of the mainland. Nazan Bay, which gives an excellent harbor to Atka, is often clear of fog when it hangs heavily outside. There is a government school in the little village on the inner harbor but no post office, and the only connection with Dutch Harbor is through occasional small trading schooners."

One MELODY GIRL

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

AUTHOR OF "The Husband Hunter, etc."

BEGIN HERE TODAY
BERYL BORDEN LOVES TOMMY WILSON and prevents his elopement with her half-sister, IRENE EVERETT. The latter is furious when she fails and Beryl secures a radio contract. Beryl tries to forget her hopeless love by going to parties with PRENTISS GAYLORD. Irene leaves Prentiss in a rich and tries to win him from Beryl.

Tommy's aunt dies and he loses both job and money through her husband. Tommy tells Irene and she breaks their engagement. When Prentiss asks her to marry him she accepts. In despair Tommy drinks heavily and joins evil companions. Fearing Beryl will expose her deceit, Irene slips away and marries Prentiss.

Beryl develops throat trouble and the doctor advises rest. She catches cold while seeking Tommy to beg him to leave his bootlegging ring. Her throat becomes worse and she is told that her singing career is over. When Tommy realizes Beryl has made this sacrifice to save him he reforms, gets another job and starts night school when he resumes his education.

Beryl is happy again until Irene comes home after leaving Prentiss whom she has accused of murdering her. Beryl realizes that Irene is trying to regain Tommy's love and is taking steps to secure a divorce.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

TOMMY was in love with Beryl. Irene saw it with eyes sharpened by jealousy. In turn she secretly raged and mocked at this situation, called Tommy Beryl's and laughed scornfully at his blindness.

Tommy in these last weeks had become a far more interesting and desirable Tommy than the callow boy she had claimed as her own since they were children. There was a subtle dignity, a seriousness about him that commanded respect and liking.

The discovery that Tommy cared for Beryl had stung. Consciously she strove to exert the old enchantment over Tommy. Irene did this even though she understood that Tommy's feeling for her was not the gold of his love for her sister—the gold that lay buried deep in his heart. She thought Tommy was like a man who sought to grow a garden in the barren soil topping a rich vein of pure ore.

Well, if you never knew you had a thing you couldn't miss it when you lost it. And Irene wanted Tommy. Tommy was hers. So she set herself to make his garden grow for him. She would have it bloom with red roses and bright vivid poppies, with flame and color and life.

At first Tommy did not know that her spell was upon him once more. They had met—a meeting his fancy had been unable to elch in for him, so tremendous was its import. He had said with a coolness that startled himself and in turn Irene, "Did you have a pleasant trip?"

HE did not know why he was not excited as he had feared he would be. He did not know that he had outgrown all but the memory of a youthful passion for Irene or that he was and always had been the true lover of another girl. The bondage of love that held him and Beryl had been of such gradual, undramatic growth that Tommy was entirely unaware of it as love. Their quarrels, their reconciliations were to him just incidents of friendship.

And Beryl, watching in despair the return of his infatuation for Irene, was determined not to interfere. She saw Irene make herself lovely whenever Tommy was expected at the house, saw her wipe the petulant expression from her face on several occasions as though with a cloth, and substitute a mask of smiling charm. She saw that Tommy sometimes looked at Irene as he had looked at her when they were sweethearts.

Beryl grew bitter. If Irene could win Tommy back then she, Beryl, did not want him. If he could so easily be called back by a girl who had jilted him then Tommy had as he had feared in the beginning, a fundamental weakness he could never overcome.

She must love him always, she felt, but if she could not respect him she did not want him.

Irene was thankful that Beryl took this attitude although she did not understand it.

She found her mother less inclined to let her have her own way. Mrs. Everett protested Gaylord's suing for the divorce, for one thing Irene had insisted with wistful resignation that it did not matter. Later Mrs. Everett had spoken her mind on the subject of money. What did Gaylord expect Irene to do?

She had asked this question as, with troubled eyes, she watched Irene unpack the lovely clothes that made up her new wardrobe. Irene's father would never be able to provide her with anything like these gowns.

"Oh, Prentiss will have to give me some money when he gets the divorce," Irene had answered lightly. She did not wish her mother to inquire too closely into her financial affairs, for she was not disposed to share with her family the money her husband sent her weekly.

"Honey," her mother said nervously, "don't you think you might be making a mistake in leaving Gaylord like this? You know it isn't so easy to do without nice things once you've grown accustomed to them."

IRENE flung a sullen bit of her gerie impatiently into a drawer. "You wouldn't have had me stay and be treated like a dog, would you?" she snapped.

"No, but . . . Mrs. Everett best tated, then plunged boldly on. "Gaylord might see his mistake and make it up to you if you'd go back. I mean he might ask you to come back, and . . . well . . . you oughtn't to do anything that would keep him from asking you," she ended lamely.

Irene stared haughtily at her. "What in the world are you driving at?" she asked, but she knew well enough, for Mrs. Everett had frowned on her interest in Tommy.

"I mean, dear, that you aren't divorced yet and Gaylord might not consider that you have a right to go around with other boys."

"Huh," Irene snuffed. "What other boys am I going around with? Here I stay at home like a recluse, minding my own business and trying to forget how shamefully I've been treated and now my own mother begins to lecture me because an old friend feels sorry for me and is nice about it!"

She started to sob into a pale green nightgown and her mother's protests were stilled. But she did not win her parent over to her own point of view. In fact, Mrs. Everett worked against her where Tommy was concerned.

For several successive Sundays following Irene's return Tommy went out with Beryl as usual. And Mrs. Everett it was who told Beryl not to mind coming back in time to help prepare dinner or do up the dishes.

"One would think," Irene complained to her mother one lonely Sunday afternoon, "that you don't want me here. You won't let me have any fun at all. If you'd made Beryl stay at home for a change Tommy would have taken me to the football game."

"Beryl needs to get out one day a week," Mrs. Everett retorted shortly, and Irene said no more. Her mother, she suspected, was beginning to think she ought to return to Gaylord. Perhaps she feared a scandal, for she'd repeated what a neighbor had said about Irene's going to picture shows with Tommy.

Rockefeller's Niece Is Found Safe Today

Lynnfield, Mass., June 11.—(UP)—After she had been reported missing last night, Miss Ruth Aldrich, 19-year-old niece of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was found today, safe and sound, at the home of a school chum here.

Her father, Edward B. Aldrich of Warwick, R. I., came here for her later and she left with him. Aldrich said the report of her disappearance was due to a misunderstanding. The young woman spent the night with Miss Mary Garden, daughter of J. M. Harnden and a classmate of Miss Aldrich at the exclusive House in the Pines School at Norton, Miss Aldrich said she and Miss Harnden motored here from Norton last night. On the basis of reports of her disappearance, Rhode Island police believed last night the girl might have been kidnapped.

LOVED WIFE "LOT" BUT $5 TOO MUCH ALIMONY
Detroit.—(UP)—James P. Robinson, a salesman, loved his wife, Elrona, "an awful lot," but not enough that he was willing to pay $5 a week temporarily alimony. "If you love her as much as you

"if you just knew how Prentiss treated me," she wailed, "you'd be more sympathetic."

MRS. EVERETT could not defend Gaylord. Appearances were against him for certainly he made no effort of which she was aware to win Irene's forgiveness.

"Of course I'm sorry for you, honey," the mother gave in, "but I want you to be careful until it's all settled."

"And you're hoping it will be settled by my going back to Oakdale," Irene declared. "But I'm never going back. I hate that place! And if Tommy Wilson loves me it's nobody's business!"

Mrs. Everett sighed. "Please don't say such things," she said pleadingly, "your father might hear of it."

"I'm not afraid of him," Irene asserted. "I guess you've told him a lot of things that aren't so to keep him from throwing me out of the house. I know I'm not welcome here," she added suddenly and began to cry.

Her mother, defeated, said no more, but the next morning, when she brought up Irene's mail to her she was again inclined to question the state of affairs.

There was the mystery of the daily letters that Irene had been receiving, for one thing, Irene had never divulged the name of her correspondent but the handwriting was plainly masculine. At first she had seemed glad to receive the letters, but after a few days she showed the beginning of an indifference that grew in exact ratio to the interest Tommy was showing toward her. Now the letters appeared to annoy her. She always read them alone but her mother discovered evidence that she destroyed them.

This morning Beryl had told Mrs. Everett that Tommy was getting a car of his own, one that he had picked up for "next to nothing," at the garage. The news disturbed Mrs. Everett more than she let Beryl see. She remembered hearing Irene say to Tommy that he ought to have a car. Now people would talk, the woman thought.

Beryl departed for the store and Mrs. Everett, alone with her thoughts while she waited for Irene to come down to breakfast, became increasingly apprehensive.

When the postman arrived and left the daily letter for Irene along with one or two others she trudged up the stairs with a settled determination to ask Irene what the letters meant.

casual small trading schooners.

"After Atka is passed the islands for 500 miles westward are uninhabited. Then comes Attu, the last of the Aleutians, the westernmost bit of land a all connected with the American continent, over which the Stars and Stripes wave. This is the outpost of America is beyond the 160th degree of longitude and so is technically in the Eastern Hemisphere. The International Date Line has been bulged out around it however, so that all the Aleutians are included in the same time system."

"Kamchatka, where Eastern Hemisphere territory will be reached, is a smaller and much less valuable version of Alaska. The northern portion of the peninsula is bleak tundra. In the south are timbered mountains. The most important port is Petropavlovsk in the south. It was founded by Russia in the early part of the eighteenth century and was considered important enough to be attacked by the Allies during the Crimean War, though the Russian commander resisted the bombardment of the enemy fleet. It is a straggling old town of rude houses, but has some elements of civilized comfort surprising in so distant an outpost. These luxuries were introduced by generations of fur buyers and Russian officials who have congregated in Petropavlovsk for three centuries."

"The majority of the population of the southern part of Kamchatka is made up of semi-civilized natives who live in log towns along the rivers and gain a livelihood by salmon fishing and fur hunting. Mixed with these are a few immigrant Russian peasants who cultivate farms of rye, potatoes and turnips. Farther to the north are wild nomadic tribes who live by raising herds of reindeer."

"The Kurile Islands, last stage of the journey before Japan is reached, are fog-enshrouded like the Aleutians. They are a string of volcanic peaks, dead and alive. Yeforof, the largest of the Kuriles, has a Japanese settlement. The natives who sparsely populate the isles are Ainu, a strange race of brown and hairy individuals. Many Ainu still live in holes burrowed in the ground and hunt in primitive fashion."

MISS ORCUTT BEATEN
Portmarnock, Ireland, June 10.—(UP)—Miss Maureen Orcutt, only United States contestant, was eliminated from the British women's golf championship today. She lost a third-round match to Miss Elsie Corlett, star north England player. The score was 4 and 3.

GOOD THOUGHTS

The heavens declare the glory of Him who made all things; Each day repeats the story, Each night its tribute brings. To earth's remotest border His mighty power is known; In beauty, grandeur, order, His handiwork is shown. —Frederick W. Root.

Riches, understanding, beauty, are fair gifts of God. —Martin Luther.

On a gray day in early spring it is interesting to watch the transformation which takes place when the golden light of the setting sun floods with color the bleak hillsides. In this light the landscape, which before seemed drab and dreary, glows with loveliness. One is reminded of the transfiguring power of divine love which, when understood and expressed, changes what might seem like a very commonplace existence into one of radiant joy. It is possible for all to understand divine love that they may experience in their own lives the effect of its light and warmth and gladness. —The Christian Science Monitor

Motorists Save Bre'r Rabbit And His Wild Babies

Washington—Bre'r Rabbit is not having such a hard time this year. One of his tribe was killed to every mile of road and highway last year. There are forty to sixty thousand miles of highway in each state. These facts were brought out in a survey made by the late Carlitos S. Avery, then president of the American Game Association.

Mr. Avery made a concerted nationwide plea to motorists at that time to avoid running down wild life whenever possible to do so without endangering human life. That the plea was effective was demonstrated within a few weeks after it was made. Less carcasses of Bre'r Rabbit, quail, pheasant, song and insectivorous birds were found on prescribed stretches of roadway that had formerly been tallied during the survey.

Indications today are that Bre'r Rabbit and other wild folk will fare better this summer when so many automobiles will be abroad during the vacation season in addition to the regular motor traffic, according to announcement of Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association. He attributes the great change to the response to Avery's plea and the newly awakened interest of the general public in conservation and restoration of wild life.

"The reduction this year in ratio of motor traffic kill of wild life on the highways is evident thus far, despite this being the most dangerous season to wild life when so many mothers are leading their babes of the wood and field across roads and highways," Mr. Gordon said.

"And this evidence is directly attributable to the desire on the part of the motoring public to save wild life. It will not surprise me if the motor traffic kill of wild life is cut in half this year, even with the added hazard of many states recently taking the speed limit off of highway traffic," he concluded.
